Appomattox National Park

Monday evening the Chamber of Commerce got squarely behind the commission which is surveying the surrender grounds here and which will shortly report its findings to Secretary of War. The Secretary will no doubt then formulate his recommendations to Congress. Helpful suggestions, hearty co-operation and every courtesy was extended the commission by our people and it is reported that they enjoyed their official visit to the historic battlefields of Appomattox. The commission will meet in Washington to formulate its report shortly.

It is hoped that the commission will be so full and interesting to the government that a National Park at Appomattox will be established. Where now thousands of visitors annually come, hundreds of thousands will be attracted here.

Saves Life of Man in Coils of Giant Python

Los Angeles, Calif.—Wrapped in the coils of a giant python that was slowly crushing the life out of his body, Wilbur Westlake, forty, veteran animal trainer, was saved from death by the presence of mind of a small boy recently.

As the enraged reptile wound its body tighter around Westlake, the youth sprang from a group of fear-paralyzed onlookers and thrust a stick of wood down the snake's throat.

The struggle took place at the winter quarters of the Al G. Barnes circus near Culver City.

And That's That

New York.—A woman can be just as attractive at forty-five as at twenty-five, in the view of Mrs. Thomas Parsons, author. And no girl should marry before twenty-five.

Bank Bandit Kind to "Grandma" in Holdup

Covington, Okla.—Four bandits who looted two banks here, exhibited a high standard of etiquette toward the aged.

As they fired directions to the rear of the Covington State bank and scooped up nearly $5,000 in currency, one of the robbers noticed Mrs. Lucy Leroy, seventy, among the victims.

"Did we take any of your money, grandma?" the bandit asked.

Informed he had picked up about $70, representing checks she had cashed, the cashier was ordered to return the checks and honor them later. "Grandma" Leroy was then escorted to a rocking chair in the rear of the bank and told if she kept quiet she would not be locked in the vault with the other customers. She complied.

FAIR NEWS
Edited by L. CRAWLEY

This story is for the children. It isn't a bed-time story, but it tells about a few of the many things the children will be interested in when they visit the Appomattox County Fair, Appomattox, Oct. 13 to 15.

You know, children forget so easily!

We want them to save their pennies so they can enjoy themselves at the fair.

There will be so many things there they will want. It will be much nicer and they will enjoy themselves at the fair much more if they save their pennies and spend their own money.

Oh, yes, there will be plenty of ice cream. Gallons and gallons of cream, flavored with chocolate, vanilla and strawberry.

There will be gallons of the pinkiest kind of pink lemonade.

There will be "Sodie-water" and pop.

There will be "hot-dog" stands barking on every corner.

There will be boys selling balloons.

There will be boys selling pennants, canes and tickets.

In other words, it is going to be a "Keen Fair".

And for the grownups we might add that we are all children again when we attend the fair. Come and have a good time. Forget your business and home worries for a few hours. Join the throng of merry-makers.

One-hundred per cent attendance of school children at the Appomattox County Fair is the goal of officials in charge of this year's fair, which will be held from October 13 to 15.

"We must have the children interested in the fair if it is to be successful," says Miss Hardy. "We want the children to enter exhibits, but regardless of whether they enter exhibits or not we want them to attend the fair. There will be many things of interest to them. Nearly every educational exhibit has been planned so that it will have a children's appeal. It is the mission of the fair to educate. We have kept this in mind in building up our program."

The exhibits of school children and the work of boys and girls' clubs in each work will prove a revelation to many visitors. The fair intitutes incentivities of the club members for the year. To them, the fair is Achievement Day, for they come to demonstrate what they have learned from their club leaders, and compete in the details of their contests. The fair management has done its part to encourage these boys and girls by offering special premiums.

No department of the fair has grown so rapidly in recent years as boys' and girls' club work. Local bankers and business men have joined with fair officials and club leaders in studying the various objects in this section. Everybody wants to see club work prosper, for, in interesting the boys and girls in corn, pigs, poultry and other club projects, they are interesting them in the problems of the farm.

Fair officials again wish to call the attention of the public to this year's entertainment program. It is the most pretentious arrangement by the fair. All kinds of new and novel attractions have been engaged, no vaudeville and fireworks in the one of a "Thousand Thrills."

To best harness racing, ever offered fans of this section will be one of the many interesting features on the program of the Appomattox County Fair, Appomattox, October 13 to 15.

The complete card, as announced today by Secretary Caldwell, calls for three days of racing.

It is a well balanced card, and with a record breaking field of entries assured, should produce the keenest racing year. Entries will be received not later than October 10.

Purses totaling liberally have been set aside by the fair management, to be split among the winning horsemen.

The Appomattox County Fair track already is in pretty fair condition. A number of locally owned horses have been working out on the track during the past few weeks.

The management will spend considerable money in dragging, rolling and working the track between now and fair time. Stables will be cleaned up and renovated.

NOTED TRAMPS PLY ROADS IN SCOTLAND

Aged Woman Says She Never Slept in Bed.

Rannoch Moor, Scotland.—The most picturesque tramps of the United Kingdom are Scotsmen who ply the broad high road which runs along Loch Lomond and across the wild and desolate Rannoch moor to Inverness.

Probably the best known is "Long Jock." For half a century this totally blind swordsman has fiddled his way along the Perthshire roads, accompanied by two dogs. He shares all his meals with the dogs and at night wraps his six-foot tartan plaid about them and himself and sleeps out under the tree.

"Old Johnson" is another. He's a genial fellow in a Balmoral bonnet and tattered frock coat. He has a wealth of humor and is known to be a master of repartee. He has been on the road for 80 years.

Highland tramps, or "tinkers," as they are called around Rannoch moor, speak the Gaelic language. They move in clans and are known by the family names, which often go back for centuries. The oldest member of the clan is the chief and his word is law. They are strict Sabbatarians and will not even blow their bagpipes for alms on Sunday.

One old woman who has lived on the ramp in the western highlands for 75 years boasts that she has never slept in a bed. She has brought up a family on the king's highway and wears a wedding ring that has been handed down from mother to daughter in her clan for 200 years.

They have a jolly life. Every five or six miles along the road is a "tramp's hotel"—a barn or hut where they can rest for the night or find shelter from the storms. The highland lassies and shepherds know them by name and exchange greetings wherever they meet.

Taxes and bank failures never worry them and at the end there is a tramp cemetery in Strathspaite called "No Man's Land."

CALLING THE HOGS

Fred Fuller of Omaha is the champion hog caller of the world. His cry can be heard by the porkers for three miles or more and he has challenged anyone to defeat him in a test of strength and skill.

Offers to Flip Coin for Divorce; Judge Stops Him

Chicago.—Mrs. Rose Lissa wanted a divorce from Joseph Lissa, and put the question squarely to the judge. Lissa wanted the divorce, too, but he wanted to flip a coin for it.

Lissa's lawyer objected to the coin flipping and the judge sustained him. Lissa then said he would pay $5,000 in court here, and the judge overruled him.

Lissa was sued for divorce, charging cruelty. His wife was represented in court by counsel who said she was willing to accept only $5,000 of the property, which is valued at $40,000.

"Make it $5,000 or nothing," he said, drawing a coin from his pocket. "We can't be accustomed to this sort," the judge said. Vases pocketed his coin and the $5,000 and went away. He spied his daughter in a corridor, beat to kiss her and broke into tears.

Trappers Use Autos

Seattle, Wash.—Another phase of the fur-trapping romance is passing. For the first time Indian trappers in the boxed valleys of British Columbia and Alaska have abandoned the snowshoe trail and canoe route. They are now at work in automobiles.

Golfers in Rhodesia Need to Carry Guns

Buluwayo, British South Africa.—Wild animals from the jungles have been blundering golf in Rhodesia. Sharpshooters have been posted on some of the links with the view of shooing away the peaky beasts.

At the Wankie course a rhinoceros has been appearing as a natural hazard, much to the discouragement of the players, while two lions have been seen frequently sauntering about the links in force. One of these was afterward shot by the men on outpost duty.

Between Beira and Dondo two green elephants and a baby elephant trampled onto the main railway line and nearly wrecked a train. One of the animals was killed, and the "elephant" catcher of the locomotive was smashed.

Most Children Defective

Washington.—Nineteen million out of the twenty-two million school children of the nation are physically defective in some way, and only four million of these have unfavorable defects, the United States children's bureau said in urging physical examinations and good medical care.

PORTO RICAN SWAMPS OF VAST AREA FOUND

Ten Thousand Acres That Could Be Redeemed.

New York.—The discovery below sea level of a 10,000-acre swamp in Porto Rico is described by H. A. Gleason, curator of the New York Botanical Garden, who has just completed a survey of the plant life of the island in co-operation with the insular government.

This swamp, now hopeless, could, it reclaimed, produce cane worth millions, according to Doctor Gleason, who said that the Porto Ricans, like the Hollanders, may be forced to use dikes, pumps and windmills to reclaim large waste areas.

"Some vegetational features of Porto Rico which probably have no counterpart in the Western Hemisphere were revealed in our explorations," said Doctor Gleason.

"The big swamp lies along the north shore of the City of Arecibo. It is nearly surrounded by some of the most fertile cane fields in Porto Rico. As it is now, it merely stands a vast expanse of sawgrass and sedges, populated by mosquitoes, frogs and waterbirds.

Abe G. Childress

Mr. Childress died at hospital in Lynchburg Monday and his remains were interred at Alta Vista Tuesday. Deceased was 45 years of age and is survived by his widow, who resides here and is proprietress of the Bandana Cabin. He was an expert horse trainer and went up to Lynchburg to look after his horses for the fair races when he was stricken. About twelve years ago he was in a runaway accident which fractured his skull and his physicians claim this the cause of his death. Quite a number of his friends from here attended the funeral.

Showered

The home of Mrs. R. E. Caldwell, Jr., was the scene of a beautiful linen shower Friday evening honoring Miss Lucile Caldwell, who on Saturday, October 2nd, at Liberty Baptist Church will become the bride of Adoniram Judson Bush. Hostesses for the occasion were Mesdames R. E. Caldwell, Jr., Edward Dinwiddie and C. R. Caldwell. The color scheme was green and gold. At the appointed hour the bride-elect entered and ascended the improvised throne, whereupon rose petals showered upon her from the chandelier. A telegram was handed the bride telling her to look in a certain place in the house and see what she would find, and upon looking there she was directed somewhere else until she had searched the house

PAGEANT OF FASHIONS NEW FEATURE AT FAIR

RICHMOND.—A brand new feature to be inaugurated at the Virginia State Fair the week of October 4, is a "Pageant of Fashions," to be presented in Industrial Hall.

The fashion show will be under the direction of Thalhimer Brothers, one of the leading department stores of Richmond and recognized style authorities of the South.

The firm's fashion expert has recently returned from Paris, bringing samples and sketches of the outstanding style features in women's apparel for the coming season. The garments are being recreated in New York and will be in Richmond in time for Fair Week.

Twelve living models of the staff of Thalhimer Brothers will display the evening gowns, dresses, wraps, coats, furs, millinery, shoes, and dress accessories which Dame Fashion has decreed for fall and winter. The showing will be the first of the new fashions in this section.

A display of children's apparel is planned for Monday, October 4, which is scheduled as "Children's Day," and negotiations are under way to secure an instructive dress-making demonstration, showing the making of women's garments, from cutting to completion, while the spectator waits.

"The Pageant of Fashions" will be an advance, authoritative forecast of what well-dressed women will wear the coming season and is expected to prove one of the most popular attractions of the Fair. No extra charge of admission will be made for the show.

1,200 Tons of New Paper Money Made Every Year

Washington.—Twelve hundred tons of paper money is being manufactured each year by the United States government to supply the needs of the country. In 12 months approximately 1,000,000,000 new pieces of paper money are put into circulation. The same number are worn out each year. The life of a dollar bill is estimated at six months, or shorter than ever before in history.

The use of paper money in this country has increased three-fold during the last 16 years. At the same time the government has been seeking ways and means of increasing the life of paper money. Paper which is 100 per cent stronger than the present standard is to be put into use soon.

The cost of the annual replacement of paper money is estimated at $4,000,000. The life of paper money is steadily decreasing, the government reports, due to increased circulation and greater carelessness in handling it.
